Guidelines for Playing the Game

1. Students take turns saying two numbers that have a possible lexical connection.
2. Teacher refers to his sheet and then writes out the words into the boxes of the two numbers students guessed and if the words have a connection they get a point after defining what the word is. If they can't define the word, another member of the group can help. If they can't, then the other group could get the point if they give a correct definition. If the combination is wrong, the teacher wipes out the words quickly. For example if a student says 1 & 18 have a possible connection, the teacher writes out the words into the squares. That will produce the combination Scuba diving which is correct according to the teacher's answer sheet.
3. If they are correct as in the example they will only get the point if they describe or define what scuba diving is.

Follow up exercise: Hand out copies of the word chop exercise below.
